Areas of Specialty

01 Uro-Oncology

Urooncology is a specialized field of medicine that focuses on the diagnosis and treatment of cancers affecting the urinary system.

02 Pediatric Urology

Pediatric urology is a specialized area of medicine that deals with the diagnosis and treatment of urological conditions in children, including infants and adolescents.

03 Adult Urology

Adult urology is a specialized area of medicine that focuses on the diagnosis and treatment of urological conditions in adults, including urinary tract infections (UTIs), kidney stones, benign prostatic hyperplasia (BPH), erectile dysfunction, and incontinence.

Areas of Specialty

01 Uro-Oncology

Urooncology is a specialized field of medicine that focuses on the diagnosis and treatment of cancers affecting the urinary system. These cancers can occur in the bladder, kidneys, prostate gland, and testicles. Bladder cancer is the most common type of urooncological cancer, with symptoms that include blood in the urine, pain during urination, and frequent urination. Prostate cancer is another common type of urooncological cancer, particularly in older men. Symptoms include difficulty urinating, frequent urination, blood in the urine or semen, and pain in the back, hips, or pelvis. Kidney cancer often presents with flank pain, blood in the urine, and a mass or lump in the abdomen. Testicular cancer may present as a painless lump or swelling in the testicle. Treatment options for urooncological cancers depend on the type and stage of the cancer but may include surgery, radiation therapy, chemotherapy, and targeted therapy.

Areas of Specialty

02 Pediatric Urology

Pediatric urology is a specialized area of medicine that deals with the diagnosis and treatment of urological conditions in children, including infants and adolescents. Common urological conditions in children include urinary tract infections (UTIs), bedwetting, vesicoureteral reflux (VUR), undescended testes, and hypospadias. UTIs in children may present with fever, vomiting, and painful urination. Bedwetting may be caused by underlying medical conditions or developmental delays and may require behavioral therapy or medication. VUR is a condition in which urine flows backwards from the bladder into the kidneys, which may lead to kidney damage or UTIs. Treatment options may include antibiotics, surgery, or observation. Undescended testes is a condition in which one or both testicles fail to move down into the scrotum. Hypospadias is a condition in which the urethral opening is not at the tip of the penis. Treatment options for these conditions may include surgery.

Areas of Specialty

03 Adult Urology

Adult urology is a specialized area of medicine that focuses on the diagnosis and treatment of urological conditions in adults, including urinary tract infections (UTIs), kidney stones, benign prostatic hyperplasia (BPH), erectile dysfunction, and incontinence. UTIs in adults may present with symptoms such as painful urination, fever, and frequent urination. Kidney stones are solid masses made up of crystals that can form in the kidneys, ureters, or bladder, and may cause severe pain, blood in the urine, and vomiting. BPH is a condition in which the prostate gland enlarges, causing difficulty urinating and a weak urine stream. Erectile dysfunction is a condition in which a man has difficulty achieving or maintaining an erection, which may be caused by medical or psychological factors. Incontinence is a condition in which a person loses bladder or bowel control, which may be caused by underlying medical conditions, medications, or lifestyle factors. Treatment options for these conditions may include medication, surgery, lifestyle changes such as dietary modifications and pelvic floor exercises, or a combination of these therapies.
